“While we are pleased to see gaining traction on robot sales, our focus in 2025 is on building the business, showcasing our robots and AI, establishing partnerships for the future, and having meaningful acceleration of sales into 2026 and beyond,” said Andrew Kiguel, CEO of Realbotix. “Realbotix has established meaningful relationships and is laying the groundwork for more collaborations as we roll out our updated robot and AI technology. With a healthy fiat cash balance in-hand, the funding of the near-term future growth of the business is budgeted.”

Corporate Treasury and Cryptocurrency Update

As previously disclosed, Realbotix has been systematically disposing of its liquid cryptocurrency holdings to fund working capital and to reserve sufficient fiat capital for its ongoing operations. As a result, the Company has sold all of its liquid digital assets as of August 11, 2025. In addition, as at August 11, Realbotix holds cash and cash equivalents of $6.0 million (CAD$8.3 million).

The Company currently has a monthly cash burn rate of approximately $385,000, assuming current overheads and excluding any unforeseen unique items that may arise. At current operating budget, Realbotix has in excess of 12 months of capital to meet its business requirements. While management prudently manages company expenses, the Company may look to expand its monthly burn if there is a visible return on the use of that capital. The Company does not undertake to update this forward-looking information except as required by law.

While the Company had utilized cryptocurrencies as a treasury asset in the past, the volatility inherent in digital assets made it difficult for management to accurately budget for future growth that is capital intensive. Management believes this is the most prudent way to successfully finance the building of its robotics and AI business. In the future, the Company may seek to re-establish a crypto treasury strategy.

The Company still has approximately 65 ETH and 9,100 SOL still under receivership with Genesis Global Trading ("Genesis"), with an approximate value, as of August 11, 2025, of $1.9 million and 1,111,111,111 Blaze token with approximate value of $31k. As a result of the uncertainty in collecting the value of these digital assets, they are carried at zero value on the Company's balance sheet. Genesis is undergoing a restructuring and there can be no assurances that Realbotix will be able to realize any value on those digital assets.
